Message from the Administrator's Office

The U.S. Small Business Administration has an enviable and challenging mission:

-- Enviable because the Agency assists and counsels the Nation's premier growth industry -- 15 million small businesses, which generate most new jobs, in recession and prosperity, consistently create most of our new products and new technologies, offer workers the most job training and employ most young, women and older workers. Serving the country's No. 1 growth industry is truly exciting.

-- Challenging because within its limited resources the Agency must act to insure that small business remains our No. 1 growth industry. Programs and policies must be directed to assist not only existing small companies but also the increasing number of men and women who want to become their own bosses and need training and counseling to help them succeed.

Fiscal 1986, as this report shows, was another good year for small business. The number of small firms continued to grow, small business-dominated industries again hired more employes than large business-dominated industries and profit margins continued relatively good.

Fiscal 1986 was a testing time for SBA and its 4,900 permanent and temporary staff members. Questions were raised by the Administration, the Congress and the Agency staff, itself, as to SBA's worthiness and program effectiveness. Throughout the year, however, SBA continued serving the small business community, and that continued service in face of uncertainty is a tribute to the Agency's employes, in the Washington, D.C., Central Office and 100 field offices around the county, in Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and Guam.

During the year, the Agency continued its efforts to make "quality" business loans -- those loans made with a reasonable expections of repayment, as the Small Business Act mandates.

A Secondary Marketing Loan Pooling Program was started, enabling investors to buy into a pool of government-guaranteed SBA loans and increasing the availability of long-term fixed-rate financing to small companies.

Also begun was a new method of small business investment company financing, with the Agency issuing the first of a series of guaranteed SBIC participation certificates.

The Office of Business Development, taking a cue from President Reagan's stress on government-private sector cooperation, stepped up its coordination with private organizations to widen and stregthen training and counseling services.

SBA, usually in coordination with other federal agencies, sponsored an increasing number of overseas trade missions to open more foreign markets to American small business owners.

Federal contracts to minority-owned small firms under the Agency's 8(a) program reached a record $3 billion. Those contracts once again represented about half of all federal procurement to minority-owned companies.

SBA continued to coordinate the Small Business Innovation Development Act, which Congress late in 1986 reauthorized for another five years. In the first four years of this program, small hi-tech firms received about $636 million in Small Business Innovation Research Awards.

The Office of Advocacy continued to speak up for small business issues and concerns. The Office again prepared President Reagan's Annual Report on the State of Small Business and assisted the White House Conference on Small Business staff prepare issue papers for the state and national conferences.

All in all, Fiscal 1986 demonstrated that economic growth is important to sustain viable social and political life and that it is the small business owner -- anchored as she or he is to the dynamics of community life -- who provided vital economic, civic and social leadership.

I am proud that the U.S. Small Business Administration, for the 34th year, carried out its mission so as to help maintain small business' role as our Nation's premier growth industry.

The State of Small Business

Small businesses enjoyed another prosperous year in 1986, the fourth year of the latest expansion of the national economy.

As a whole, the year was marked by price stability and a continued decline in interest rates, which were lower than for any period in the last decade. Low interest rates are important to small businesses not only because of the lower cost of capital but also because low interest rates expand markets for many small business-dominated industries, particularly housing construction.

Other interest-sensitive industries with large small business employment, such as retail trade, also benefited from the lower interest rates as consumer debt reached an all-time high.

At the end of Fiscal 1986, surveys reported that small business presidents were optimistic about future economic conditions; only 13 percent of firms surveyed were pessimistic, the lowest such level since 1981.

New business incorporations, which reflect the startup of a new firm, the intention to start a firm or the conversion of a partnership or proprietorship into a coprate form, apparently reached another record in 1986. Estimates put the incorporation total at about 700,000, five percent higher than the previous year.

Indications were that new business startups of all kinds continued to rise during the year. In 1986, 253,327 businesses large enough to require a Dun & Bradstreet rating were started, slightly more than were recorded a year earlier.

The most comprehensive measure of the number of businesses in the country is the number of tax returns received by the Internal Revenue Service. The IRS in 1986 showed 15,245,000 businesses; of that total, only, 6,260,000 firms report annual revenues in excess of $25,000.

All signs pointed to an improvement in small business earnings during the year. For example, income of non-farm sole proprietorships in 1986 was 15.6 percent higher than in 1985.

Once again, the nation's gains in overall employment were led by employment gains in industries dominated by small businesses (that is, industries with 60 percent or more of employment in enterprises with fewer than 500 workers). Employment in industries dominated by large corporations rose on one half of one percent.

Business Loans

SBA provides a variety of loan programs to eligible small firms that can meet certain credit requirements. The Agency makes some loans directly, but the majority are the guaranteed type -- that are made by private lenders and then partially guaranteed by the Agency.

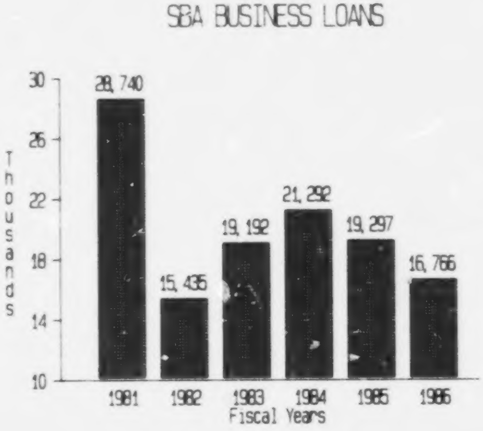
In Fiscal 1986, 16,766 business loans were approved; the loans were worth $2.6 billion.

Small businesses owned by minorities received 2,029 loans worth $265 million. Small businesses owned by handicapped individuals and nonprofit concerns that employ the handicapped received 134 loans worth $15.4 million. No energy loans were made during the year. This absence probably reflects a reduced public interest in alternative energy sources and other energy concerns.

SBA approved 14,207 regular business loans worth $2.1 billion. All were of the guaranteed type and represented about 85 percent of all loans made by the Agency and about 83 percent of the dollar volume.

There were 558 loans worth $46 million made to small businesses located in areas of high unemployment and to small businesses owned by persons with low incomes.

SBA loan officers are stationed at all Agency offices to assist with loan applications, processing and approval. Here, Linda Petty of the Washington, D.C., district office discusses a loan application.



Small Business Investment Companies

At the end of Fiscal 1986, there were 344 regular SBICs with total capital resources of $2.29 billion and 137 MESBICs with total capital resources of $403.6 million. During the year, SBICs provided $441.2 million to small businesses in 2,721 transactions. MESBICs provided $139.1 million in 1,656 financings.

SBICs are privately managed and capitalized investment companies that are licensed, funded and regulated by SBA. SBICs provide small firms with long-term debt and equity financing. SBICs at times provide significant management assistance to small firms. MESBICs (Minority Enterprise Small Business Investment Companies) assist small firms owned by minorities.

Since the beginning of the SBIC Program 27 years ago, 51,768 small firms have received $5.98 billion of SBIC financing. SBICs at the end of Fiscal 1986 had about $1.65 billion of financing outstanding to small firms. Since they started in 1971, MESBICs have made $655 million worth of financing to minority-owned small firms. MESBICs currently have about $264.7 million of outstanding financings.

Surety Bond Guarantees

To help small contractors obtain contract surety bonds, SBA has guaranteed up to 90 percent of losses incurred under a bid, payment or performance bond that has been issued to a small contractor by a qualified surety. Bond guarantees are limited to contract values of no more that $1.25 million.

There was an unprecedented demand for SBA surety bond guarantees during Fiscal 1986. In an effort to serve as many small contractors as possible within the Agency's limited financial authority, emergency regulations took effect on June 6, 1986 reducing the guarantee to 80 percent of all bonds, changing the premium rate cap for surety companies from 1.5 percent to 1.8 percent and increasing the contractor fee from $5 per $1,000 to $6 per $1,000 of contract total.

There were 11,200 surety guarantees worth $1.2 billion during Fiscal 1986. This volume required processsing about 50,000 application packages.

Disaster Assistance

As a result of five hurricanes which struck the United States during the 1986 hurricane season and also as a result of major storm and flooding damage in Puerto Rico and California, SBA disaster loans during the year reached a five-year high of almost 23,000. The loans were worth $517 million. These totals were 200 percent higher in volume and 65 percent high in dollar value than the previous fiscal year.

Disaster temporary staffing, which began the year at 277, increased to a high of 664 in December.

During the year, statutory changes deleted two non-physical disaster programs (federal action economic injury disaster loans and currency fluctuation economic injury disaster loans) and made agriculture enterprise ineligible for SBA disaster loans.

Pollution Control Financing

SBA in Fiscal 1986 approved 14 pollution control guarantees for projects worth $26.4 million. The Pollution Control Financing Guarantee Program helps qualified small businesses obtain long-term financing for acquisition and installation of pollution control facilities mandated by government.

The Fiscal 1986 approvals exceeded those of the previous three years combined (12). There have been 265 approvals since the program began in 1976; the guarantees have involved projects in 27 states.

During the year, financial institutions and SBA field offices were furnished revised guidelines and procedures to inform and assist eligible small firms. Credit procedures were strengthened and processing times were shortened.

Office of Financial Institutions

The office basically manages programs that involve to some degree or other privatization of SBA business loan procedures so that delivery of business loans can be made in a more timely, cost effective and prudent manner.

In the Certified Lenders Program, the Agency places greater reliance on a group of selected lenders to analyze a loan applicant's creditworthiness and then present to the Agency a complete and fully-documented loan submission. The loan package is then reviewed and processed by SBA in three working days or less. Regular loan processes take between two and three weeks. There were 652 lending institutions in CLP at year's end; one fifth of these lenders also take part in the Preferred Lenders Program. There were 4,107 CLP loans made during the fiscal year, compared to 4,249 in Fiscal 1985. But CLP's share of all business laons remained about the same (28.9 percent), despite the decline in the business loan total.

Participants in the Preferred Lenders Program are chosen from among the best-performing CLP participants. PLP lenders in effect are extensions of SBA: They have full authority and responsibility for handling almost all aspects of making buisness loans, determining a loan applicant's eligibility and creditworthiness, closing the loan, loan servicing and, if necessary, loan liquidation.

In Fiscal 1986, there were 662 PLP loan approvals, up from 284 in the previous year. There were 135 lenders in PLP at year's end.

Certain non-banks and small business lending companies in particular continue to deliver a disproportionate share of guaranteed loans (about 13 percent of loan approvals and 15 percent of dollar value). These institutions also continue to be leaders in the CLP and PLP programs.

Some of the small business lending companies and some of the California business and development companies outgrew their capitalization base during the year. These lenders have sought additional capital and there has been interest in acquisitions of inactive small business lending companies. Other states are developing their own business and industrial development companies, holding out the prospect that there will be more volume and quality-oriented SBA lending specialists in the financial services industry.

To monitor the performance of lenders, the Office of Financial Institutions has established computer reports to reflect the activity level and the status of lender portfolio and also to provide data on the performance of SBA field offices.

Economic Development

The Agency's economic development programs provide financial, management and technical assistance through public and private organizations to existing or potential small firms. The programs aim at generating economic growth and development through loans to small firms seeking long-term financing or expansion of facilities.

Economic development is carried out in four ways:

State development companies (the 501 loan program), local development companies (the 502 program), certified development companies (the 503 program) and the 504 development program.

A total of 1,567 loans were made under these programs in Fiscal 1986; SBA's loan share totaled $353.2 million. In Fiscal 1985, the respective totals were 1,434 loans, $311.8 million in SBA's share.

In the last five years, there has been an additional $1.9 billion in private sector economic development projects. An estimated 194,000 jobs have been created or retained as a result of these SBA programs.

The Budget Reconciliation Act required SBA to conduct a pilot program of selling debentures guaranteed by SBA in the 503 program to investors either publicly or by private placement.

Loan Portfolio Status

There were 331,004 loans valued at $15.2 billion in the Agency portfolio at the end of Fiscal 1986. A year earlier, the portfolio consisted of 363,115 loans worth $17.3 billion.

The delinquency rate on all porfolio loans stood at 5.7 percent at fiscal year's end, compared to 6.9 percent a year earlier. The liquidation rate of 8 percent was virtually unchanged.

Debt collection remains an Agency priority. The movement to use computer-supported methods in the loan servicing and collection areas was accelerated. An example of such utilization was national implementation of the Delinquent Loan Collection System.

SBA's loan prtfolio is divided into three basic parts:

-- The guaranteed loan section, of 76,573 loans at year's end. Efforts continued to improve the reporting and accuracy of the guarantee portfolio.

-- SBA-serviced business loans totaling 120,972 and included regular business loans and disaster business and farm loans. Improvements in computer systems enabled the Agency to improve reaction time to borrower problems and needs and to maintain a greater degree of portfolio control.

-- Disaster home loans totaled 126,955. More than 70 percent of these loans, which basically are consumer credits, are now being serviced by five collection centers, using advanced computer collection techniques.

-- In October 1985, SBA notified about 45,000 delinquent disaster home loan borrowers that the Agency would in January 1986 refer their delinquencies to the Internal Revenue Service for income tax refund offset. Many delinquent borrowers responded by making payments on their loans. At the end of Fiscal 1986, SBA and IRS offset collections from such borrowers totaled more than $14 million.

Report Required by Section 308(g)(2)(A) of the Small Business Investment Act of 1958

On August 6, 1974, SBA entered into a letter of agreement with the Federal Financing Bank which provided for the sale of SBA-guaranteed SBIC debentures to the Bank. SBA entered into a Guaranty Agreement with the Bank on August 8, 1974, whereby all SBIC debentures sold to the Bank through SBA were guaranteed by SBA to the Bank pursuant to Section 303(b) of the Small Business Investment Act.

On April 7, 1986, the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act (COBRA) was approved which removed the authority of the Bank to purchase SBA-guaranteed SBIC debentures. The Bank no longer serves as a capital bank for SBICs.

During 1985 and 1986 several bills were introduced in Congress that if passed and approved by the President would have created a quasi-government entity, the Corporation for Small Business Investment (COSBI), which would have been a capital bank for SBICs. The Administration in commenting on these bills in hearings in the Congress opposed them because they included elements of government financial support that were considered excessive.

Report Required by Section 308(g)(2)(B) of the Act

Operating SBICs have principal offices in 42 states and the District of Columbia. MESBICs are located in 26 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. Location of licensees does not necessarily indicate the locations of the small business concerns which have been the recipients of SBIC financing. SBICs reported financings to small businesses in 49 states in calendar year 1985.

Report Required by Section 308(g)(2)(C) of the Act

The Associate Administrator for Finance and investment (AA/F&I) is responsible to the Administrator for taking such steps as will insure the licensing of SBIC participants who have a high probability of effective and efficient operations. Further, the AA/F&I insures the recoupment of government funds provided to SBICs under Section 303 of the Act, and is responsible for establishing and directing procedures designed to insure compliance by SBICs with the Act and SBA regulations. The AA/F&I delegates day-to-day administration of the Act as it pertains to operating SBICs to the Deputy Administrator for Investment (DAA/I). Under the DAA/I, the Office of Investment carries out its activities under a director and four chiefs, each assigned to a different part of the country.

Licensing. The issuance of a license by SBA establishes a long term financial and regulatory relationship between SBA and SBICs and therefore the licensing function is of utmost importance. SBA seeks to license SBICs owned and operated by individuals and/or organizations that have suitable financial resources and management experience for providing high risk, illiquid financing to small business concerns.

Leveraging and Financial Monitoring. This includes periodic review and analysis of financial reports to each licensee to determine the licensee's financial condition and the relative security of the govemments's creditor status, if such exists. SBA is also responsible for all analysis leading toward the government funding of any licensee under Section 303 of the Act, because recoupment of government funds is ultimately dependent on initial sound investment practices. No funds are approved for a new licensee until it has been examined by an SBA examiner and has invested or committed at least 65 percent of its private capital funds.

Funding the SBIC Program. The Office of Investment with the assistance of the Office of General Counsel is responsible for establishing and maintaining the systems necessary to fund SBA's guarantee of SBIC debentures. Between October 1, 1985 and April 6, 1986, the guarantee was funded through facilities of the Federal Financing Bank. Subsequently, SBA developed, as a result of the COBRA legislation, a new private sector funding mechanism. This mechanism provides for the sale and pooling of SBA-guaranteed SBIC debentures and for the issuance of SBA-guaranteed pass-through certificates representing beneficial interest in such pools.

During Fiscal 1986, SBA sold $68.8 million worth of SBIC debentures to the FFB, representing financing of 53 SBICs. After April 1, 1986, SBA arranged for private sector financing of 36 SBICs in the amount of $67.2 million.

Due to the unique nature of the type of SBA leverage authorized for MESBICs under the Act, funding for these companies is accomplished by SBA's direct purchase of their debentures and preferred stock. In Fiscal 1986, SBA provided leverage 59 times to MESBICs, totaling $39 million. This compares to 65 leverage actions for $44.1 million in Fiscal 1985.

Report Required by Section 301(g)(1) of the Act

The liquidation activity of the SBICs is handled nationwide by SBA's Office of Portfolio Management. During Fiscal 1986, liquidation action was completed on 15 SBICs. Of these cases, 8 were paid in full, representing principal recovery of $9.5 million. There were 7 cases on which $3.7 million was charged off; $1.1 million was recovered. A total of 245 cases had been completed as of the end of Fiscal 1986. These cases comprised a principal indebtedness of $107.3 million due SBA as of the date of transfer from the Investment Division to the Office of Portfolio Management. Of this total, $68 million has been collected; $39.3 million has been charged off as uncollectable. Liquidation action at year's end continued on 126 SBICs which had an aggregate outstanding principal indebtedness to SBA of $300.5 million.

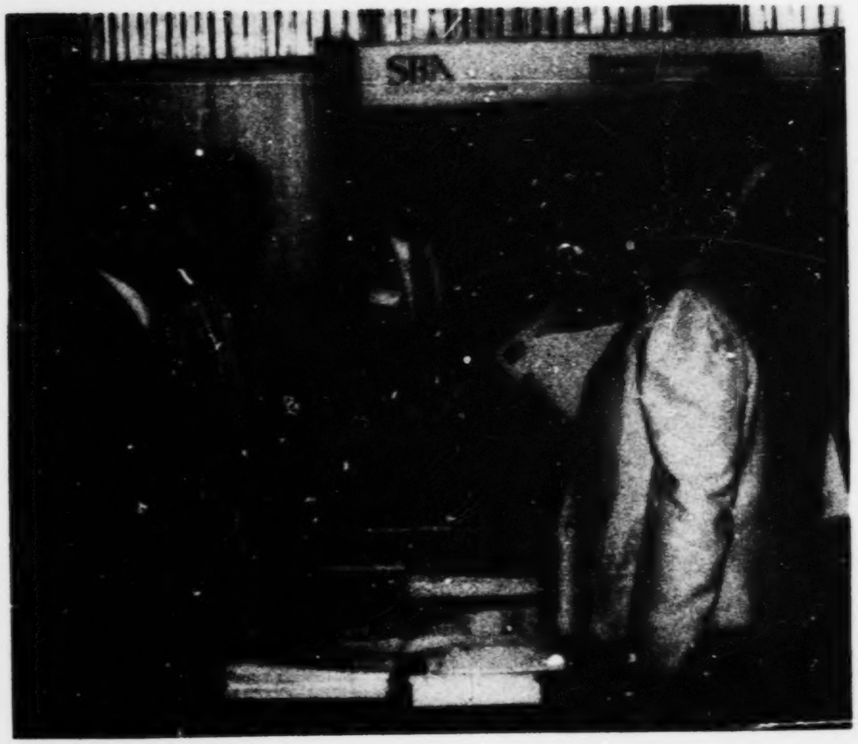
Office of Business Development

Business Development

In the fiscal year, the Office of Business Development significantly changed from reliance on Agency staff for direct training, counseling and other managment assistance to reliance on outside resources. Private sector service delivery took precedence over public service delivery.

In 1981, SBA management assistance officers accounted for about 30 percent of direct counseling. In Fiscal 1986, SBA business development officers counseled only six percent of the 208,000 clients served.

In short, the Agency's business development officers have become true resource managers, blending the skills of 12,000 Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE) volunteers, 520 Small Business Institutes, 49 Small Business Development Centers, may of the 2,700 local chambers of commerce and other business development resource groups.



More and more management training is being delivered through joint SBA-private sector cooperation. For example, Bell Atlantic teamed with SBA to stage a successful series of marketing seminars, as illustrated here.

Three training programs in Fiscal 1986 included services delivered by private sector interests: Bell Atlantic, for the second year, managed the "Success" series of marketing seminars; the International Franchising Association, with the Office of Business Development, conducted conferences on evaluating and purchasing a franchise, and Travelers Insurance and Safeguard Business Systems cosponsored with SBA programs to develp home-based businesses.

The combined resources of SBA and the Private sector trained 555,000 clients during the year.

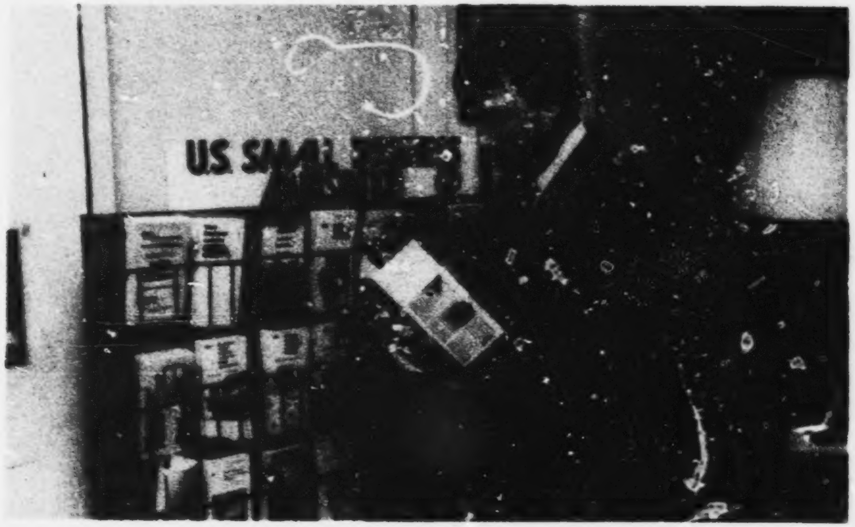
The Office of Women's Business Ownership, which during the year became affiliated with the Office of Business Development, also placed considerable emphasis on working with outside resources and served as a resource to communities on issues affecting women-owned businesses.

WBO negotiated with other federal agencies to set prime contract goals for women-owned firms. Fiscal 1986 goals were 25 percent higher than the previous year.

The Office of Veterans Affairs also became a part of Business Development. In coordination with the Department of Labor, OVA began a pilot veterans business training project in South Carolina, funding came primarily from commercial lenders.

In the year, veterans received $22.6 million in direct loans – 48 percent of all direct loans. Veterans received 24 percent of all guaranty loans.

In recent years, the number of women-owned firms has increased annually by 9.4 percent, well above the 4.3 percent annual increase for men-owned companies.



Ninety-five management assistance publications are available through SBA and the Government Printing Office. In Fiscal 1986, 1.2 million of these publications were sent to present and potential small business owners.

Office of Minority Small Business and Capital Ownership Development

Minority Small Business and Capital Ownership Development

In Fiscal 1986, SBA continued policies, started in Fiscal 1983, to increase minority business participation in federal procurement, to improve efficiency of the 8(a) program and to make the program available to a greater number of minority-owned small firms.

At year's end, there were about 3,000 participants in the 8(a) program, up from 1,900 in 1983. The Agency had 2,400 applications on hand for 8(a) praticipation. SBA field offices were delegated authority to negotiate the length of 8(a) participation.

A record amount of federal contracts -- $3 billion -- was awarded to 8(a) participants during the year. This total was about seven percent higher than awards made the previous year.

Minority-self employment increased 64 percent from 1975-85, significantly above white and overall self-employment growth. Black-owned businesses showed a 46.7 percent increase from 1977-82.

During the year, the Office of Private Industry Programs awarded $6.8 million in assistance to individual minority-owned small firms and business consultants under the so-called 7(j) program. This section of the Small Busienss Act allows financial assistance to public or private organizations for technical or management assistance. Special efforts are made to assist small firms located in high unemployment and low-income areas and to small firms eligible to recieve 8(a) contracts.

During the year, MSB/COD sponsored a series of strategic business development seminars to help minority business owners determine their needs and take steps to better insure the survival and growth of the companies. To better leverage its limited resources, SBA utilized the services of national trade associations, including the National Association of Minority Contractors and Golden State Business League, to assist in minority business development.

In cooperation with the Minority Business Development Agency (MBDA), SBA made a $800,000 grant to the International Association of Black Business Educators to help 42 black colleges and universities improve business educational services in their communities.

SBA continued a cooperative agreement with MBDA aimed at assisting firms completing, or near completing, the 8(a) program to move into the private competitive marketplace. Agency staffs developed new cooperative approaches to deliver more sophisticated management assistance to 8(a) firms.

Office of Procurement Assistance

Procurement Assistance

In carrying out its mandate to insure that small firms get a fair share of federal procurement, the Office of Procurement Assistance works with other federal agencies to create "fair share" procurement goals. In Fiscal 1986, this share was negotiated at $61 billion and 46 agencies participated in negotiations with SBA.

During the year, SBA continued to implement the Breakout Procurement Center Representative Program, under which SBA specialists breakout large sole-source procurements into smaller quantities or parts so that awards can be solicited on a full and open competitive basis to eligible small firms. BPCRs were placed at 31 Department of Defense procurement centers as provided in Public Law 98-577. SBA established, in coordination with the Comptroller General, standards for measuring cost savings achieved through the breakout program and for measuring the extent to which competition has been increased.

During the first nine months of Fiscal 1986, SBA breakout representatives broke out 1,018 items for competition. The contracts awarded for the items broken out were worth $159.8 million. Without the breakout process, these items would have cost $267.6 million -- saving $107.8 million.

During the first none months of Fiscal 1986, SBA's traditional procurement center representatives reviewed more than 128,000 procurement packages to ensure that small companies were given the opportunity to bid and possibly win prime federal contracts.

SBA's traditional procurement center representatives also review contracts to ensure that private prime contractors direct a share of subcontracting work to small firms. Public Law 95-507 directs that prime contractors must submit a subcontracting plan setting forth percentage goals for utilizing small businesses, including separately identified goals for small firms owned by the disadvantaged.

Incentives are now offered to encourage more contractor participation in the subcontracting program. When large businesses fully comply with the requirements of Public Law 95-507 and demonstrate their own initiatives, they are granted administrative relief such as waiving compliance reviews for two years. Certificates of excellence are also awarded.

SBA's Timber Set-Aside Program guarantees small firms their fair share of federal sawtimber offered for sale by the Department of Agriculture's Forest Service and the Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management. In Fiscal 1986, about 5.7 billion board feet, or 68 percent of federal sawtimber sales, were purchased by small businesses.

By fiscal year-end, 130,000 firms interested in getting federal contracts were listed in SBA's Procurement Automated Source System (PASS), a computerized list. Computer terminals are in 400 federal and private procurement offices.

SBA's Certificate of Competency Program, which certifies contract performance by small firms, amounted to $445.3 million in fiscal 1986 contracts, double the 1984 amount. Fiscal 1986 COC program savings exceeded $50 million -- about four times the program cost.

Since inception, SBA's Breakout Procurement Center Program has saved the taxpayers about $460 million through breakout competitive bids by small firms whose contracts cost less that sole-source contracts with large contractors.

Procurement Help: One Example

SBA's traditional procurement center representatives often prove a big help to small firms capable of performing federal work. An impressive benefit came during Fiscal 1986 and involved the Army Corps of Engineers construction project at Fort Drum in Watertown, New York.

The $1 billion project is to expand the Fort Drum complex to train, billet and sustain the 10th Army's Mountain Division (Rangers).

In December 1985, the Corps of Engineers had identified for small business only a single contract valued at $3 million to $5 million, aimed at 8(a) Program participation. Dissatisfied with this decision, SBA initiated discussions with Corps officials and Department of Defense procurement policy staff.

As a result, SBA obtained a commitment from the Corps to set aside $50 million to $70 million in contracts for small business, including participation by 8(a) firms. The Agency also reached agreement with the Corps to target a subcontracting goal of 30 percent for small business and an additional 10 percent for disadvantages small business.

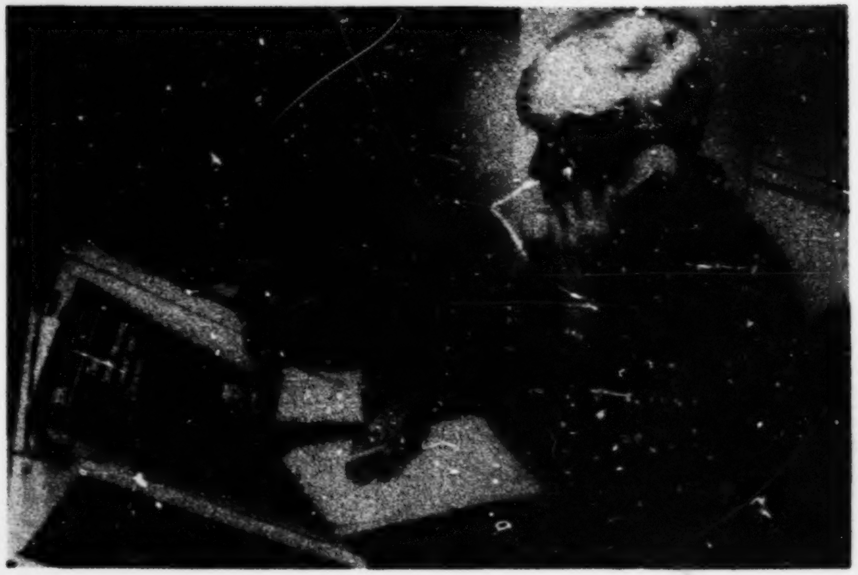
As a result of SBA's efforts, small business could realize between $100 million and $275 million worth of work on the Fort Drum project.

Office of Advocacy

The Office of Advocacy in Fiscal 1986 marked its tenth year of serving as the "watchdog" for American small business -- the only such "watchdog" in the Federal Government. Congress created the Office of Advocacy to counsel, assist and protect small business in order to better preserve free competitive enterprise.

During the year, the chief counsel for advocacy testified 10 times before Congress on small business issues. The Office of Advocacy prepared legislative and regulatory comments on almost 50 small business issues.

Advocacy played a key role in the 1986 White House Conference on Small Business by providing delegates with reports that detailed issues discussed at the state conferences which preceded the National Conference. Advocacy continues to monitor the status of the Conference's 60 top recommendations.



Advocacy's toll-free telephone "Answer Desk," helps small business owners with government-connected problems. "Answer Desk" handled 51,000 calls in Fiscal 1986.

The Regulatory Flexibility Act mandates that Advocacy monitor federal agency compliance with the Act -- which, basically, aims to insure that agency regulations do not adversely affect small businesses. In its Fiscal 1986 report on this activity, Advocacy noted that the Act has largely succeeded and that federal agencies have improved their regulatory decisions by using improved economic data, by engaging in more outreach and by increasing communications with the small business community and with Advocacy staff.

During the year, Advocacy, working with 50 agencies, monitored 1,405 regulations and Regulatory Flexibiliity Act actions.

Advocacy's Interagency Affairs Branch sponsored a conference on the issue of utility competition with small business; Advocacy's efforts relative to this issue led to enactment of utility competition provisions in the Conservation Reform Act of 1986.

The Interagency Affairs Branch took part in the Administration's "Tort Policy Working Group" which looked into the rising cost and scarcity of business liability insurance. Based on the group's report, the Administration introduced legislation to reform certain liability laws. Advocacy testified before congressional and state legislative committees on the insurance crisis' negative impact on small businesses.

Coordination between Advocacy and the Environmental Protection Agency modified a proposed EPA rule on hazardous waste disposal; the modification minimized regulatory burdens on about 100,000 small firms which generate small quantities of hazardous waste. Advocacy also participated with EPA in developing regulations for underground storage tanks.

Advocacy's Economic Research Branch was instrumental in producing the President's Annual Report on the State of Small Business. The branch also hosted a symposium on economic issues affecting home-based entrepreneurship and funded several research proposals on public policy implications for small business.

Economic Research developed a small business data base that provides a benchmark to gauge the performance of the small business sector in relation to the overall economy. The data base serves as a tool to more accurately predict the impact of various economic policies on small busiiness.

Advocacy's State and Local Affairs Branch continued to coordinate activities with state and local government officials, who to an increasing degree appreciate that the economic health of their states and communities depends in large part on the health of their small businesses. Advocacy again sponsored its annual state small business conference at which private sector and state and local government officials discussed small business policy initiatives. In this regard, Advocacy published a "Directory of State Small Business Issues."

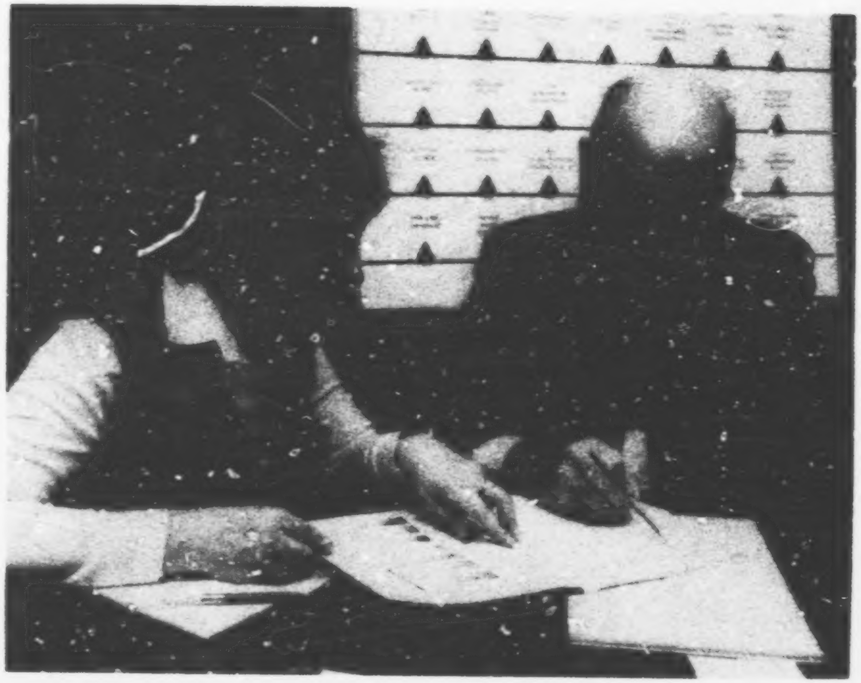
Advocacy also coordinated 1986 National Small Business Week, proclaimed annually by the President as a means of paying special tribute to the nation's small business owners.

Office of Innovation, Research and Technology

The Office of Innovation, Research and Technology continued to monitor, coordinate and evaluate the Small Business Innovation Research Program created by the Small Business Innovation Development Act. Late in Fiscal 1986, Congress passed and the President signed a five-year reauthorization of the act, extending it to October 1, 1993.

To assist those small hi-tech companies receiving SBIR awards, this SBA office developed and implemented a Commercialization Matching System to help awardees in commercializing their innovations. Such commercialization comes in "Phase III" of the SBIR program, after small firms have received "Phase I" and "Phase II" awards, designed to initially look into the potential of their proposals and then develop those proposals with most potential.

The matching system links potential sources of private captial with SBIR awardees by matching technology and industry areas. The system's computerized data base contains more than 500 sources of capital and more than 3,500 SBIR projects. The system also provides technical abstracts of SBIR projects to possible investors and provides SBIR awardees with information about ventrue-capitalists and large corporations which might consider investments.



Foreign visitors reflect the world-wide interest in American small business and the SBA. Dr. Ludmila S. Demidova, of the USSR Academy of Science, is shown being briefed on the Small Business Innovation Research Program by Assistant Administrator Richard J. Shane.

Federal research funds are involved in "Phase I" and "Phase II" SBIR awards, but only private investment funds are involved in "Phase III," which is aimed at bringing innovations to the marketplace.

Eleven federal agencies take part in the SBIR program, under which the agencies must set aside a legislated percentage of their research and development budgets for small companies:

Departments of Agriculture, Commerce, Defense, Education, Energy, Health and Human Services and Transportation; Environmental Protection Agency, National Aeronautics and Space Administration, National Science Foundation and Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

These 11 agencies also take part in the "goaling program" required under the law -- that is they must set small business research and development funding targets of not less than the percentage awarded to small firms in the preceding fiscal year. Seven agencies take part in only the goaling program:

Departments of Housing and Urban Development, Interior and Justice; Agency for International Development, Smithsonian Institution, Tennessee Valley Authroity and Veterans Administration.

Payoffs already are being reported in the SBIR program. An increasing number of award recipients are reporting significant technical breakthroughs and practical product development.

For example, Emerson and Stern Associates of San Diego, which received an initial Phase I and subsequent Phase II SBIR award from the Department of Education, has developed a computer software product which, when used in schools, can check grammar as well as spelling. The product has been tested in schools and Emerson and Stern has been negotiating a licensing agreement with major educational software publisher f production and distribution.

Data Sciences of Minneapolis, which received a Department of Health and Human Services award, has developed a series of devices and related technologies permitting scientists to collect information from experimental anaimals in a repetitive way without the necessity of handling the animals. The company has sold up to $20,000 of such devices in a month and has increased employment from 2 to 12.

Office of Information Resource Management

Several new computer systems were developed to provide loan management information. An automated inventory system now provides appropriate staff with paperless access to all purchased collateral. A management information system now supplies SBA field offices, Congress and other federal agencies with statistics on the Agency's loan portfolio and the status of major lending activities. This system shortened from three weeks to three days the time between completion of the loan accounting system month-end processing cycle and availability of management date generated. An on-line business loan allotment system was designed to provide up-to-date information on allotment balances, balance-in-reserve and unobligated amounts.

Improvements were made in the Loan Accounting and Cash Collection System. The loan accounting/cash collection daily processing cycle is now 60 percent faster.

A state-of-the-art, on-line database system replaced a 10-year-old paper process in the Surety Bond Guarantee Program. The new system provides an automated allotment update process that gives management a daily picture of the status of surety bond allotment obligations.

Support and service to all SBA data communications systems improved; transactions processed increased from 600,000 per month in Fiscal 1985 to 1,000,000 per month in Fiscal 1986. The number of applications systems, users and data terminal equipment also increased. Underwater cable services to SBA offices in Puerto Rico and Hawaii were replaced with satellite services.

Office of International Trade

SBA field offices made special efforts to identify small businesses with export potential and to acquaint such businesses with sources of possible financing. During the year, SBA counseled 3,523 potential exporting clients and conducted 419 export training sessions for 17,297 attendees. The Office of International Trade published a revised "Export Information System Manual" featuring United Nations statistics on world demand for 2,700 products. The manual provides U.S. exporters with a concise overview of world competition for specific products and is used in SBA's counseling efforts.

During the year, the Agency approved nine revolving-line-of-credit loans worth $2.5 million. Twenty-seven loans worth $8.9 million were made to small exporters under other loan programs.

A total of 111 small firms took part in nine SBA-supported export shows and missions, including a trade mission to China and an all-woman health care services industry trade mission to Japan. Participating small firms reported that 1,151 business leads generated $3.3 million in sales and $28.2 million in projected sales. Agreements were signed with 40 agents/distributors, 13 licensing agreements were established and 16 joint ventrues worth $12 million were signed.

Inspector General

During Fiscal 1986, the Office of the Inspector General's audit and investigative activities resulted in $34.4 million in actual and potential savings to the government.

The Audit Division completed 590 audits of SBA programs and program participants. The Office of Regulatory Audit completed audits of 491 small business investment companies, 59 contractors, 12 small business development centers, 8 entities taking part in the Certified Development Company Program, 6 nonbank lenders and 1 recipient of a Section 7(a) business loan. The Office of Internal Audit issued 13 audits of SBA programs and operations. The Audit Division's activities resulted in recoveries and potential savings of $21 million.

The Investigations Division was assigned 766 cases, of which 173 were closed due to administrative or judicial actions and 245 were referred for possible prosecution or Agency action. The division's activities resulted in $13.4 million in recoveries or potential savings.

The Office of Inspector General established a Hotline (202/653-7557) and a private post office box (P.O. Box 28242, Central Station, Washington, D.C. 20005) by which Agecny employees and the public can communicate directly and in confidence to report possible instances of fraud, abuse, waste and/or mismanagement in SBA programs and operations.

Office of Private Sector Initiatives

In carrying out its objective of creating productive partnerships by combining the resources of SBA, other federal agencies and the private sector, the Office of Private Sector Initiatives, among other activities, organized international joint venture conferences, cosponsored with the Public Broadcasting System four small business teleconferences and organized six conferences on high technology.

The international joint venture conferences, with special emphasis on India, China and Thailand, gave small business owners an overview of joint ventures and policies and programs of the host countries. Speakers included American ambassadors, economic counselors and legal and banking experts.

The national teleconferences, involving PBS' National Narrowcast Service, dealt with product liability, employee training, mergers and acquisitions and small business financing. Each program was carried in up to 120 locations.

Six two-day conferences on problems connected with starting a small high technology business were held in six major cities.

The Office also produced a multi-media presentation on small business incubators. The presentation was primarily aimed at corporative executives, state and local government officials, university administrators and executives of nonprofit organizations.

The Office sponsored special seminars for retailers, concentrating on how to motivate and manage employees, and a joint information campaign with local child care information and referral coordinators. Three major conferences on obtaining and financing government contracts were held in the Southeast.

Accounting and law firms, non-profit organizations, private corporations and other federal agencies cooperated with the Office in this business assistance.

Advisory Councils

Members of SBA's National Advisory Council -- composed of 145 small business owners, lawyers, bankers, accountants and small business trade associations -- continued to provide the Agency with valuable counsel and advice.

More than 40 council members were delegates to the White House Conference on Small Business, and the council is active in activities relating to followup action on the conference recommendations.

SBA's acting administrator late in Fiscal 1986 appointed three special Advisory Council task forces to supplement the work of the group's standing committees.

One task force will make recommendations on application of user fees. Congress has mandated that SBA study new applications of user fees. A second task force will review the Agency's size standards and the third will review the 8(a) program.
